

SCDC Supporting Communities Programme

Support for Community-led Action Planning

As part of this year's Supporting Communities Programme SCDC are pleased to offer support for community organisations who are involved in community-led action planning.

More and more communities are getting involved in community-led action planning. Our support offer is for leading community organisations wishing to develop new action plans or evaluate and revise already existing plans.

What is the support?

We can develop short-term tailored support to meet your needs. This support will focus on specific pieces of work related to community-led action planning activities and might include:

- Independent facilitation of events and consultation activities
- Support to develop and plan new - and review existing - community-led action plans
- Problem solving, advice and independent perspective
- Community engagement skills and frameworks
- Community-led research methods, approaches, and practice

Who is the support for?

Community organisations who play leading roles in their communities. Sometimes called 'anchor organisations', these are organisations that might: take a key coordinating role in their communities; support and build the capacities of others; drive forward change in their communities; design and deliver services for communities.

Some examples include:

- Community Councils
- Community Benefit Companies
- Housing Associations
- Community Development Companies
- Community Development Trusts
- Tenants and Residents Associations
- Community Projects and Organisations
- Community Networks

What do I need to do?

Support will be offered on a first come first served basis. Available support days are limited and we expect demand to be high. In the first instance, please email a basic outline of the support you're interested in and information about your group to mick.doyle@scdc.org.uk or olivia.hanley@scdc.org.uk You can also call 0141 248 1924.
